Industrial Compulsion to Follow That Proposed in Asquith Measure, Declares William Anderson.

(By Evening Herald Leased Wire)

District, England, Jan. 26. (Cable, 40.)—The representatives of more than 2,000,000 members of trades unions met here today to decide the attitude of organized labor toward the war and in particular compulsory military service.

Early in the proceedings an attack on the compulsory service bill was made before the house of lords was made by the president of the conference, William Anderson, member of parliament for the Attleborough division of Sheffield. Mr. Anderson, who had opposed the bill in parliament, declared that it did not redeem the pledge of Premier Asquith regarding compulsion.

"No form of words can offer immunity from danger," he said. "We cannot have forced military service without the risk of forced industrial service. Any attempt to use this weapon to coerce trades unionists will lead to great bitterness and end in failure."

Mr. Anderson said there was danger in Great Britain "attempting the impossible" in seeking to be simultaneously a great naval, a great military and a great industrial power. He said the world would be different after the war, adding:

"It will be a hard and bad world for labor unless labor takes a hand in shaping it."

The British labor conference adjourned today by a vote of 1,544,000 against 200,000 a resolution urging approving the action of the parliamentary labor party in co-operating with other political parties in the national recruiting campaign.

The government could buy back the ships at a reasonable price for naval auxiliaries in time of war. A bond issue of £50,000,000 for the purchase or construction of ships would be provided by the bill, which also includes a shipping board to control shipping rates.

Senator Clarke led the filibuster which finally prevented the passage of the measure last year, and after his trip with the president today it was understood he object to some features of the new bill. Mr. Kitchen said that his principal objections had been removed by changes from the former bill.

VILLA USING OROZCO'S NAME AS RALLYING CRY

(By Evening Herald Leased Wire)

El Paso, Tex., Jan. 26.—Francisco Villa, the bandit chief, now in western Chihuahua, defying the forces of the Carranza government, is using the cry "Remember Orozco" to stir up hatred against Americans and gain recruits for himself, according to foreigners who reached the border today.

Mr. Section's motion was adopted by a card vote of 1,562,000 against 492,000. The session of the labor conference will last three days.

Tension among the delegates, who represent upwards of two million workers, was evident from the moment W. H. Ayles, a local labor leader, in welcoming the congress, remarked that the members of the party in District neither had the time nor the inclination to engage in recrimination.

Mr. Section's motion was adopted by a card vote of 1,562,000 against 492,000. The session of the labor conference will last three days.

General Orozco was Villa's most formidable foe until the latter drove him across the border into the United States after the battle of Tlalnepantla two years ago. Orozco was shot and killed last September in the High Loses mountains, on this side of the boundary, some time after he had forfeited the command under which he was being held as a violator of United States neutrality laws.

The reports were brought to the border by foreigners who were in the Chihuahua City during the trying period just before and after Villa evacuated the capital.

Thirty-six Americans were herded into prison just before Villa left the city, a number of Chinese were shot and the stores belonging to them and Japanese merchants were looted and burned.

"Militarism and democracy cannot live together in Germany or anywhere," was one of the pronouncements of the members of the delegation.

The presidential address of Mr. Anderson did little to allay the suspicions of those delegates who have been making a fight against communism.

The president would be empowered to reserve naval bases and coaling stations.

The amendment would further provide that if at any time before the expiration of four years, the president should find that proper steps had not been taken to establish an independent government of it should find it expedient for reasons affecting the welfare of the Philippines themselves or the international relations of the United States, or it should be unable to negotiate agreements for protection of American property, the president would be authorized to delay recognition of Philippine independence until the American congress could further consider the case.

The amendment also would authorize the president to invite cooperation of the principal nations of the world to mutually pledge themselves to maintain the Philippine independence. That failing, the president would guarantee independence on behalf of the United States alone for five years.
